

STUDENTS CHOOSE CAMPUS LEADERS TODAY

VIE FOR SOCIETY PRESIDENCY

Robert G. Cripps
ARCHITECTURE 2.

There is only one issue today. War.

The primary purpose of the university at the moment is to produce men and women capable of winning the war and constructing the peace.

This cannot be accomplished by the Senate or the Principal.

It is a job requiring teamwork and the student body is the team.

What we need is a strong Students' Society, ready to act on the opinion of its members. But it must first promote and extend student activity in order to gauge this opinion. It must withdraw the student from the isolation of his faculty and engage him in larger campus problems. It must stimulate collective thinking and co-operative action—necessary for the hour and for the future.

Proper organization can accomplish these things. One concrete suggestion would be to form an advisory committee to the executive council. This committee would consist of the executive members of the various undergraduate societies, Arts and Science, Medical, Engineering, etc. It would meet at the beginning of each term to draw up a program of inter-faculty activity and appoint responsible persons to see that it is carried out.

Beyond this, student government should see that the students' position is adequately presented to the

Before presenting the platform which I submit to the students of McGill University for their consideration, I wish to extend my personal thanks to those who nominated me for this office. Should the student body see fit to elect me to this position, it will be my constant endeavor to see that student government is implemented with thoroughness and efficiency and in a democratic manner.

May I first of all thank those who nominated me for the position of president of the students executive council.

I feel that the primary duty of the president of the Students Society is to interpret the feelings of the student body on all matters which affect their welfare, and to see that their sentiments are expressed in the proper quarters. Therefore, in presenting this platform, I do not intend to express my own opinions necessarily, but rather, what I feel to be the opinions of the majority of the students.

In these times, the thought foremost in all our minds is how much we are contributing to the successful conclusion of the war. Many of us feel, as we see others entering the armed forces, and munitions industries, that perhaps we are not carrying our share of the burden. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The leaders of our country constantly reiterate that the greatest contribution a student can make today, is to continue his course to its completion. The need for well trained, well educated men, in all departments of our war machine is greater than ever before. Nevertheless, it is obvious that there is an honest desire on the part of the students to do more than this. Certainly there are many ways in which we can help during the normal college year, without in any

I am of the opinion, that it is the duty of all students to look upon their work as having meaning only if it is directed towards a total war effort. Every activity or development should be encouraged and supported which will help us in reaching our goal—a total war effort on the campus.

The allied war effort is being speeded up and as responsible individuals we must take an active part. We cannot sit back and wait for the Government or the University authorities to take the initiative on matters which directly concern us. Our success in the near future will largely depend upon how fully we realize the necessity of immediate action. We must co-operate intelligently in every phase of war work. With this in mind, I wish to present this platform.

The Application of Selective Service

It is obvious that the President of the Students' Society is not in a position to dictate on the way selective service will be applied to the University, but the student body can be very helpful by actively co-operating with the authorities and by taking an intelligent interest in this matter. The Government has announced that selective service will be fully implemented within a year. We can and must help them to complete the job sooner if possible.

LAW 1.

In thanking those who nominated me, I should like to assure them and the whole student body that, if elected to the Presidency of the Student's Society, I shall endeavour to give the campus the most advantageous use of the experience I have gained in extra-curricular activities during my years at McGill, and to execute the duties that fall to me with fairness in everything I may do.

The following are the main points of my platform:

- a. More constructive student war effort.
- b. Uphold the right to student self-government.
- c. Establishment of a depot to obtain information about McGill men overseas.
- d. Military Training.
- e. Athletics: intercollegiate and intra-mural.
- f. Maintenance of student activity if college is open during the summer.
- g. An active Freshmen Reception Program.

A Student War Effort.

If national selective service is established in the near future, then those who remain to study must give:

- a) First and foremost, every opportunity to study and study well.
- b) Second, encouragement and facilities to turn their spare time

Debating Union To Hold Elections Tomorrow

McGill students will go to the polls today from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. to elect officers to hold the major campus posts for the coming year. Twenty-one candidates will run for the eight offices open. These posts are: President of the Students' Society; President, Vice-President, and Secretary of the McGill Union; the Representative to the Athletics Board; President and Secretary of the Women's Union; and President of the M.W.S.A.A.

Students will vote at the polls allotted to them, a list of which will be found on this page. The polls will close at two o'clock this afternoon.

The position of President of the McGill Debating Union Society will be filled at the Annual General Meeting of the Debating Union tomorrow afternoon. Further information concerning this will be found elsewhere on this page.

Reservations for Combined Ball Will Be Taken Today

Dr. Fulton to Speak at Philosophy Meeting

The Philosophical Society will meet for the last time this session this evening at 8:15 in R.V.C. Professor J. S. Fulton of the Department of Philosophy will address the gathering, speaking on the topic "The So-Called Scientific Attitude." The executive officers of the Society for next year are to be elected at tonight's meeting.

IVCF to Hold Fifth Conference

Luncheon Will Precede Meeting Next Saturday

This Saturday, in the McGill Union, the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will hold its fifth annual Conference. The speaker on this occasion will be Wing Commander Gerald Gregson of the Royal Air Force. He will speak to members and guests of the McGill Christian Fellowship at a pre-conference luncheon to be held at 1:00 o'clock. He will also address both afternoon and evening sessions of the conference at open meetings.

Wing Cmdr. Gregson is head of the Chaplaincy service of the R.A.F. stationed in Canada and the U.S.A. He is a graduate of Cambridge University. In his undergraduate days he starred on college tennis and badminton teams. The church which he held in England before enlisting in the R.A.F. has twice had all its windows shattered by bomb explosions.

At the discussion period, which takes place in the afternoon, the group of University students will be led by Rev. Maurice Murphy of Quebec City. Mr. Murphy is a recent graduate of the University of Toronto. He was a championship swimmer at Varsity, and is a member of the team which holds an Intercollegiate relay record established in 1935.

Programs of the Conference have been sent to all McGill students. These are invited to attend and bring their friends. Supper will be served in the Union Cafeteria at regular prices.

LAST ISSUE

The last regular issue of the McGill Daily for this year will appear next Monday, March 16. A special convocation number will be issued on May 28.

Eight-Couple Parties Recommended by Dance Committee

By C.P.

Table reservations for the Plumber-Med Ball which is to be held at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium tomorrow night will be taken from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today by calling MA. 3842.

The Committee in charge of the dance emphasize that it is important that only one member of each party call for reservations, and that they arrange eight-couple parties. The tables accommodate eight couples; and therefore, to avoid having strangers at the same table, eight-couple parties are recommended.

Mart Kenney's orchestra has been called "versatile" more than once, and for very good reasons. Besides having a varied repertoire, which includes three-beat stuff as well as Latin rhythms and a sizeable collection of cut-time ditties, the band also features a group of musicians who are at home on a large number of instruments. This "doubling" always gives small-band arrangers the opportunity to use what sound like formidable brass or reed sections, merely through the shifting of men from one position to another.

Band Features "Shifting"

This type of shifting has long been a feature of the Kenney crew, who can muster up a five-man brass section, or use a solid five-man reed section at will.

Mart's band, which is airing regularly on Wednesdays at 9:30, also features a number of instrumental and vocal soloists, all of whom are familiar to the band's listeners. Outstanding among the instrumentalists is Bobbie Gimble, whose solos

Macc. Circle Meets Sunday

Annual Elections Will Be Held At Final Meeting

The Maccabean Circle is holding its last meeting of the year this Sunday afternoon at 3:15 in the Union Grill Room. After the address the annual elections will take place.

The executive has drawn up the following slate of officers: Mervyn Weiner, President; Suzanne Cohen, Vice-President; Maurice Goldstein and Lewis Manolson, Treasurer; Lillian Brown and Rya Segal, Secretary; Edna Agranovich and Suzanne Cohen, Bulletin Editor. Additional nominations will also be called for from the floor for these positions before the vote is taken.

The closing banquet will be on Sunday night, March 22.

M.W.S.A.A. Elects New Officers and Managers

Pre-Med Society Will Hear Dr. Andre Richard

The Pre-Medical Society will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon in the Union Ballroom at five o'clock when they will hear an informal talk by Dr. Andre J. Richard, French Roentgenologist, who has just recently come to Canada from occupied France.

The present Executive has announced that nominations from the floor to the positions of President, Vice-President, and Secretary for next year will be in order at the meeting.

The Society has also been successful in locating a house where their dinner dance will be held sometime soon.

Annual Banquet To Take Place Next Tuesday

The Annual Meeting of the McGill Women Students' Athletic Association was held yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. Common Room. Pat Neilson gave a synopsis of the changes which have been made in the constitution of this Association. The Secretary's report was read by Barbara Pitcairn. She also gave her treasurer's report for the year.

The Association's Annual Banquet will be held on Tuesday evening, March 17, at 8:30 in the Union Grill Room. The price will be 50 cents per person. A list of award-winners will be published during this week, and these girls will be given a special discount on their tickets.

Theolog Wins Public Speaking Contest at P.C.

Glenn K. Cowan has been announced as the winner of the public speaking contest which was held at the Presbyterian College.

The contest consisted solely of reading excerpts taken from the Bible and from the works of Shakespeare, and the prize awarded to Cowan was twenty-five dollars.

Judges in the contest were Professors George and Maddox of Anglican and United Church colleges.

Dance Club to Give Concert

Movements and Techniques Will Be Featured

The Junior and Senior Dance Club are giving a concert on Friday, March 20th, at 8:30 p.m. in the Upper Hall of R.V.C. and will be held in aid of the Students War Fund. General admission is 50 cents while, for students, 25 cents.

The concert will consist of three groups, namely, Dance movements and techniques with explanations of their movements, a group of Dance studies, and a group of Dance compositions. The dance compositions are: "Go Down Moses," "Retro-spect," a Gershwin Music, "Inconsequential Themes," a Bach Chorale, "Nightmare," "Factions."

The term "Modern Dance" is used to designate the practice of the dancers getting control of body movements. The dances are all made up by members of the club

Today Is the Day

Today is the day when the issue will be decided, the strife and strain of elections will be over and done, and politics will retire to their studies for another year. Today is election day on the campus.

This is an important day in the campus year. The results will have a great effect as far as undergraduate activities are concerned. Some things will be run well and others poorly; McGill will have a year to be proud of or one to be passed over with a shrug. Today is election day; we are about to change our campus leaders; we are about to change from the old to the new.

Today is the day that the Daily usually prints an editorial pleading that the students exercise their franchise, that they really get down to the polls and vote for the men and women whom they feel to be best qualified to hold the positions. A great many different things must be taken into account. In each individual case, and on the results of this will the men be elected.

There is really no chance that the students will find themselves with leaders whom they do not want, if they will all exercise their franchise. What is important is that their be a majority, not so much in the vote, but of the student body voting. This is important for two reasons; first, only with nearly all of the students voting can we be sure that the wishes of nearly all the students have been made known. Secondly, it eliminates a great many of the possibilities of dishonesty and unfairness that have been present in campus elections in the past just as they have been present in governmental and provincial elections.

We would be the last to say that by some miracle everyone will be honest this year.

But we do hope that students will realize that the campus is one place where elections should be a model to follow; we hope they will realize that—is their responsibility, as well as that of the men appointed to take care of the polls, to see that this election is a fair and honest and open election.

We do hope that students will exercise their innate good judgment when they are marking the ballots, and will be swayed by their own knowledge, and preferences only. We do hope that students will realize that their vote, if not cast, counts only in one way; against themselves.

How about making a record vote in this election? The polling booths aren't hard to find, and it's easy to mark the ballot for the candidates of your choice.

Vote today, and remember that the polls close at 2 p.m.

"The Little Fellow"

Charlie Chaplin, in "The Gold Rush," plays a type of little immigrant which is no doubt outside the experience of most modern, twentieth-century, American movie-goers. In fact, the most touching bits of this wonderful picture will never reach our 1942 sophisticates. One needs to have seen, perhaps, and known intimately, those straight-backed and upright little fellows—immigrant Czechs, Hungarians, Ukrainians, Poles, or little Jews from somewhere in the middle of old Europe—to understand the quaint mannerisms, uncomplaining modesty, and pitiful innocence of Charlie Chaplin's "little fellow." He is awkward, stiff, and very polite in "society"—proud, and yet really afraid that at any moment he may be pushed and laughed at. Notice particularly this formal, old-style politeness: his raising of the hat, his bowing to the ladies, his pathetic, apologetic smile. Good manners are not an artificial veneer to this little immigrant; he is pure gold right through, and his politeness is his way of being a "gentleman," clinging to his simple notion of how it is proper and well-bred to act. Too bad that in the New World he should be laughed at and ridiculed for just this classical politeness, this bowing and smiling which foolish girls will imitate. Charlie Chaplin makes you laugh—and how!—in order to bring out poignantly the pure, human little soul that is hiding behind the funny, baggy, outer man.

The immigrant type may be scarce today, and some of us may never have known him, but Charlie Chaplin wins sympathy for certain childlike and elementary qualities in us that will never be out of date. There is a gentle lesson, which he surrounds with much laughter, running through his work, and it gives Charlie Chaplin a place among the best of creative artists. Consider what is true art, and you will say that "the Gold Rush" ranks beside the plays of Moliere, besides Tom Jones, and Gogol's Dead Souls. It brings out, as under a microscope, certain human qualities that we ought never to permit to die.

"The little fellow," like all of us, moves in a world of people who are realistic, sophisticated, and terribly hardened by experience. The little fellow tries to be like everyone else. But his own spontaneous feelings never follow the formal conventions of the world; and therefore he is awkward, always embarrassed, always on the brink of some ridiculous blunder. Those people who are worldly and "tough" push him about and laugh at him; but as Charlie Chaplin says, "They laugh at him—perhaps because they want to hide their own embarrassment." You see, the childlike nature of this little fellow is something which is hidden in everyone; it is embarrassing. Under conventions we hide our naive and simple selves.

This honest, childlike nature—which the little fellow has not yet learned to hide—comes peeping through almost every laughable thing he does. In love, what an utter fool he makes of himself! And what a dreamer he is! Looks at the scene he dreamed up for himself for New Year's Eve. He could imagine how his beautiful love would bend towards him at table, and speak softly; how he would be called upon to give his speech, awkwardly holding the girl's hand and pressing it to his chest. What an idealist! And how sad this funny scene really is!

"Quelle male galeite si triste et si profonde
Que, lorsqu'on vient d'en rire, on devrait en pleurer!"

Reviewers will tell you that this is over-sentimental; but reviewers only prove by this that they do not understand. The picture is true to life, and that is all that matters; like all good art, it enlarges and sets off whatever it wants men most to understand.

Charlie Chaplin's every gesture, every expression, every comical flip of those big feet, is worth a comment. Notice how he has something to say about everything the little fellow does. The commentary does not explain the action at all—for that is clear enough—it brings out the emotional meaning of the action. If Charlie Chaplin only had the time, he could tell you a million things more. Notice those little details: with what gourmet judiciousness he chews off the piece of tallow candle—how critically he tastes the little experience of life. How gaily and without complaint he bites off some boiled boot, and even nods an appreciative "not bad!"

Charlie Chaplin, much more than all the critics already admit, is not a mere comedian, but a true artist as well. He might have made satire, if he had been, capable of hate; but perhaps it is better this way—he has much love, and what other people hate he merely finds a little ridiculous. He teaches something that too many have lost in this twentieth century. We moderns are sophisticated, objective, unnatural, conventional—and often even cruel and callous. We might learn from Charlie Chaplin: open our sympathies wide to him, and understand what the little fellow is trying to say.

yoohooditties
BY YEHUDY

B.A?

Now, Reader, is the time for you to have your handkerchief handy. For this is the last time we take our battered typewriter in hand to pound off our column. And so, our purpose today, will not be to tickle your funny-bone and make you laugh, but merely to draw from you a fond smile, and, from the tender, understanding heart, perhaps a tear. Only please, Reader, take care not to wipe away that tear just when the Prof is in the routine of cracking his pet joke.

Let's put some of those withered pages back on the calendar now and go back to a certain night in October, 1940, when the Muse kindly condescended to pay us a visit, trailing behind her the inspiration to write a column. We tossed around in bed for a number of numberless hours, trying to figure out names for our brainchild-to-be, until suddenly, in the wee hours of the morn, right out of the blue, it came to us: Yoohooditties. We bounced out of bed (journalistic we, you understand) and scribbled it out in sleepy characters to prevent its flowing out of the sieve of our intellect into oblivion. Then we went back to bed. The great majority of our subsequent columns, incidentally, were conceived in much the same fashion. Now you know.

A few days later, on October 15th, to be exact, we penned a timid note to the Feature Editor: "Dear Sir, re. Yehudy. Enclosed please find a contribution for your page. If this is published and meets with any success, other similar contributions could be supplied from time to time. Yours very truly, Jimmy Panos." And so it came to pass that the first Yoohooditty saw the light of day. We are now in the process of writing our twentieth column. All told, we have penned some twelve thousand words for the Daily, if you are interested in vital statistics. But of course you are not. Comments have varied from "rotten" to "a stroke of genius." (I) At least one of our columns was reprinted in a number of campus papers here and in the U.S. And the other day we had the great pleasure of witnessing Marge, a devoted reader, show us a letter from a military friend somewhere in England, commenting on a Yoohooditty she had sent him. But enough of this patting us on the back.

We have had our troubles, though—Editor troubles, of course. There were times when our work was mercilessly mutilated by one Ed or another cutting out what we considered to be the best bits. Editors are somehow all cursed with that gift. There was a time even when a whole column was censored. (You can imagine what it must have been like.) We took it squarely on our chins. "It had no point," the indignant Editor complained. All we could do was not to be too hard on our judgment of his literary tastes.

It is almost time for us to retire to our last abode. The remnants of our work will be buried in the files of the Daily, in some damp, dingy, cob-webby corner of its underground home. (Or are we over-ambitious.) Perhaps in journalistic generations to come, some energetic and impertinent cub reporter will exhume us, look us over, chuckle slightly to himself, and heap upon us the earth of oblivion again, while we roll over in our papyrus grave. And we fondly hope that our work may linger also in the hearts of some of our readers, and, in the distant, distant future, bring a warm memory to mind and a faint smile to the lips.

We have reached the end. Modestly and quietly we withdraw to the margin of Page 2, whence we have a feeling we came, and half-reluctantly we peck our last period.

Theatre Notes

"THE MOTHER"

Last night the Drama Group of the Montreal High School and the High School for Girls gave the first performance of their annual play for 1942, "The Mother."

The story is based around the life of the mother of five sons, who sees each of them leave to die for a cause and who is finally faced with the experience of losing her last son. Her struggle with herself and with the "ghosts" of her dead husband and dead sons make up much of the action, and give the play a touch of fantasy to raise it out of the category of typical dramas.

On the whole the play was extremely well presented both from the point of view of the acting and producing. The atmosphere of almost irritating expectancy kept the audience's attention through the longer speeches, and the effective lighting and sound effects broke any monotony that might have arisen from the fact that there was no change of scenery during the three acts.

End Hobart is to be complimented on her performance as the mother. Not once does she get "out of character," and her full warm voice enabled her to put much tenderness into the convincing portrayal of a character so much older than herself. Outstanding among the male cast was Jack Landsky as the thoughtless, well-meaning father. He played his role with much naturalness and poise and seemed quite at home in his major's suit.

The voices coming over the radio, which play an important part in the last act, were realistic enough to be gripping. Paulen Bishop whose voice was used as the mother calling the sons of the country to arms gave a difficult monologue with a great appreciation for all the dramatic possibilities it gave her.

As in previous years, the credit for the smoothness of the performance and the weaving of the characters into an even cast must be given to the producer-director of the Drama Group, Mr. Gordon LeClaire, who by his production of "The Mother" has added another laurel to his wreath of plays at the High School.

authorities. Many students are aware of certain inefficiencies in our present war training program and are anxious to see it function more effectively. Valuable suggestions can be put forward and this should be done without delay.

Only decisive action on the part of students can demonstrate to the government our anxiety to be useful in this crisis. A program of war work for women on a scale equal to that of summer employment in industry for men is a reasonable expectation. Only by direct contact with the government can we hope to achieve this or any similar project. It is my intention to carry out such a policy if I have the opportunity to do so.

Above all the technique of student control should be adapted to war-time conditions. This is in large part the president's job, a job I am prepared to carry out as effectively as I can. We cannot afford to remain a loose-knit society. We should be organized so that university training can be recognized as an essential contribution towards winning the war and not as a war privilege.

H. Lloyd Henderson

we shall have the "axis powers" in retreat.

Our problem today is not so much how to achieve universal ideals, (important as such are) but rather how to face stern realities; not how to make a world which will be warless but how to keep war from destroying the world completely; not how to build a perfect social order, but how to escape economic suicide; not what ideal institutions would do, but how shall we show the vitality of democracy to the world.

The year, which we as students face, will be one of struggle. But let us be encouraged by the fact that where there is a struggle there is sacrifice, co-operation and friendship. Where there is fellowship, there is love and life. Fellow students we must face the coming year with Sacrifice, Service, and Faith.

Because "our" way of life in a very special manner fits us to meet emergencies it is our duty and privilege to do all in our power to preserve Democratic Institutions. The University must continue to be a rigid wall of defence. It must cherish and defend Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Assembly, Freedom in elections, Freedom of the Press and Religious Freedom.

With this in mind I would urge all students to make full use of the right to vote at the coming elections. Mr. Churchill said recently that he learned in his father's home "to trust the people." This most certainly applies to university students. Hence we ask you one and all to vote. For the position of president there are five candidates. This gives you a certain range of choice. The choice must rest with you. If you are not personally solicited to support this platform, you will know that it is because respect is shown for your ability to make up your own mind.

The year we now face must inevitably be one of struggle. Many of our students have already paid the supreme price. We rejoice that we have men and women who in the Cause of Liberty, Justice and Peace have volunteered if necessary to make the supreme sacrifice. Our prayers are ever with them and our eyes scan the heavens for the dawning of that day when we may "hail our sons who see the light High in the heavens their heritage to take."

I saw the powers of darkness put to flight
I saw the morning break."

Regular Meetings of the Students' Society.

In order that students may become better acquainted with the work of the Executive Council, I feel that it is important for meetings of the Students' Society to be held at regular intervals (possibly every two months). At these meetings students would be given an opportunity of expressing their wishes and also of questioning the executive as regards its activity. This would also make for a more democratic system of student government.

Freshman Activities.

This phase of College life has been given considerable attention during the past year. Some improvements could be made and Freshman Rallies are suggested.

Sophomore Committee

In order to further "College Spirit" a Committee could be appointed to make sure that the Sophomore class would have the opportunity of meeting in social functions early in the year.

Clubs and Societies

My wholehearted support will be given in the matter of working for close co-operation between campus clubs and the Students' Council. The various clubs make a very definite contribution to College life; furthermore they provide an opportunity for students to hear outstanding speakers in the various fields.

Football and Hockey

A famous general has said that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing field of Eton. It would be well for us to keep this in mind at the present time. War is a young man's activity. General McNaughton realizes this fact only too well when he suggests a lowering of the age limit for senior officers. The point is this; can not our war effort be advanced by keeping college students physically fit? And what better means to this end than Inter-Collegiate Sports? In war time student and public morale must be kept at a high level. For this reason I favor a return to some Inter-Collegiate athletics.

Co-operative Book Store

The co-operative book store is an institution on many of our Canadian Campuses; and thereby students are enabled to make a saving of from 12% to 20% on the books which they purchase. I see no reason why this question may not be investigated with a view to establishing such a store at McGill.

Intercompany Indoor Track Meet to Start Today at Gymnasium

Red Shorts
by irene

Although it has only been two weeks since we wrote our last column, yet so many things have happened since, that it seems like months. To go back that far we had better begin with the Gymkhana, which showed us just what the college students are doing to prepare themselves for any emergency that may arise in our uncertain future. The money that was made was handed over to the McGill War Fund as before.

The next thing that we can remember was the Coed and Air Force hockey game. It was a swell game from all reports, and after a real battle it ended with a draw—six all. The red and white pucksters all expected another game like the one against the Engineers—who did not take them seriously, but used the wrong end of their hockey sticks—and they were very surprised to see the "Boys in Blue" turn out such a swell team, and then to play the game in all seriousness. We are certain that each one of the girls wishes to thank them for the nice time and to wish them the best of luck in the future.

The Inter-collegiate Telegraphic Swimming Meet results have not been posted, as Varsity was not able to run her meet in time, but we think that we will probably know sometime this week. Mary Holden again starred for McGill, and we'll probably see Mary bringing more honours to her home town, and her Alma Mater.

The M.V.S.A.A. meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. common room, when each manager gave her annual report and the coeds voted for new sports managers. The annual banquet will be held next Tuesday at 6.30 in the Union Grill room, when all the awards will be presented to the girls who won them during the year. While we are on the subject, don't forget to vote for the new M.V.S.A.A. president, your vote may make the decision.

More and more people are seen going up north, as the skiing season draws to a close, and the McGill coeds are no exceptions, as they prepare to take part in the Inter-section ski meet which is scheduled to take place this weekend along with the Redmen. All those who wish to enter in the competition are asked to watch the Daily for further notices.

The Modern Dance Club will give a recital on Friday evening, March 20, at 8.30 p.m. in the R.V.C. upper gym. The general admission is fifty cents, while the students will be able to obtain tickets for twenty-five cents. Everyone is invited to see all the different dances done by the club. The performance will be given in aid of the war effort, and the proceeds will be given to the McGill War Fund.

The ping-pong tournament is going along at full rate, but all those who have their names up on the board, are asked to watch the date of their game, so that there will be no hold-ups for the finals. By the look of things we have an idea that it is a favourite game.

The basketball finals are still dragging along, and we were asked to remind the teams that still have to play, that the season is nearly over, and the re-

March 23 Is Date Set For Assault at Arms

The final Intercompany Assault-at-Arms will take place on Monday, March 23, in the B.W. and F. Room and will begin at 7.30 p.m. This will consist in a boxing and wrestling tournament. Those eligible for this contest will be placed in the following weight divisions: 118 lbs., 125 lbs., 135 lbs., 145 lbs., 155 lbs., 165 lbs., 175 lbs., and heavyweights. These events will be open to any student at McGill or MacDonald and will count towards athletic awards.

Judging from the past performance of some of the boxers and wrestlers already bearing the McGill colours it promises to be a pretty good show. A lot of new blood is expected to swell the ranks of each of these divisions. Those students who attended the Company Smokers a few months ago will most probably remember the rip-roaring fights put on for their entertainment. There were two boxing matches and one wrestling match. The boxing matches were by far the most interesting with plenty of toe to toe fighting.

If the same brand of fighting is given on March 23 as was given on the night of the Smokers it will afford a few hours of colourful entertainment. Since most of these fights last but three rounds there is no preliminary sizing up of the opponent and the fighters usually come out of their corners ready to tear each other apart.

Navy Meets Marines at Forum Today

Intramural Ice Loop Now in Semi-final Stages

The semi-finals of the intercompany hockey loop will see the Navy tangle with the Marines at the Forum at 12.30 today. The Navy are undisputed league leaders to date, and this game will not decide the first place. However, it will be a good indication of the strength of the Navy, when they are challenged for the title.

The play-offs will be between the four leading teams. Navy has two games to play, and if it loses both it will be tied with the Marines for first place. However, this is unlikely, since one of their contests is with the Aggies who are in the cellar, with only two games out of nine to their credit.

GAME TOMORROW
The Artillery will lock horns with the Infantry tomorrow, and if Morrison's men can take the Infantry, they will advance into third place over the Air Force. If the Infantry wins there will be a three-way tie for third place, which will complicate the play-off schedule considerably.

The Navy aggregate looks pretty strong with Crutchfield, Kennedy, and Owen leading the attack. Moncel, fresh from his triumph in the McGill nets against Clarkson, will be a major factor in stemming the tide of any Marine push. The Marines boast of Cleary, Malenfant, and Ritchie on their offensive end, while Earl Smith will be an obstacle to the Navy on his own blue line.

ARTILLERY RAMPANT

The Gunners are out to get into third place with no strings attached, and with a line of Morrison, Mann, Read, and Holden, their chances are fair. However the Infantry has some pretty starry material in Hillier and Keay, and now that Farmer is back in the running their chances of knocking out their opponents has soared.

Although the line-ups are not available, the teams are as follows: Navy—MacEachern, Crutchfield, Owen, Hale, Dausch, Gibson, Grank, Kennedy, Covo, Ivey, Patterson, Millon, Cowan, Pye, Tougast, Moncel, Nicholson, Reade, Gagnon, Aboud.
Marines—Thompson, Cleary, Smith, Malenfant, Chown, Burrows, Ritchie, Patrick, Rutledge, Sargent, Johnson, Shannon, Adams, Pope, Rose, Simmons, Watt, Wake, Sumner.

Customer—But I can't pay you for this suit for three months.
Tailor—Oh, that's all right. Don't worry about that.
Customer—Well thanks. When will it be ready?
Tailor—In about three months.

Second Part of Event Is Set for Wednesday Next

Medicine Ball Throw to Be One of the Main Features of the Program

The first round of the Intercompany Indoor Track Meet will be run off at the gymnasium starting at 5.00 p.m. today. The events scheduled are the 50 yard dash, the 440, the running high jump, and the medicine ball throw. Anyone is eligible to enter the meet, and the first ten men in each event will score for their company. Since no one has been training of late for track competition, good conditioning is not essential.

The meet was inaugurated last year and though the turn-out was small, all the contestants entered as many events as possible. The medicine ball throw, a new form of shot put, proved a great success last year, with everyone having a hand in it.

SECOND PART

The second part of the meet will take place on Wednesday, March 18, when the 50 yard low hurdles, the mile standing broad jump, and an intercompany relay will be on the program. Although athletic awards will not be presented to the winners of the meet, participation will qualify a student for an award.

Scarcity of track meets lately has lowered the standards of the entrants, but there are a few important names entered. In the sprints, Bourne and Gillespie of F company, Bowman and Womfor of C, and MacFarlane of the C.O.T.C. constitute the major threat. Cowan, Carefa-Smart, Held, Long, Macintosh, and Stairs are expected to pace the field. Burman, one of the Red harrier team, is out due to a dislocated shoulder. The high jump will see Percival as the main threat, with Walker and Gillespie.

GYM GOOD

The gym floor was found to be an excellent place for an indoor track meet. There is no real track, but the size is comparable with the indoor tracks in the large American meets. Twelve laps usually constitute a mile, while at the gym thirteen are required. There is an additional advantage for the hurdles, since the runners may use the west entrance as an added space in which to stop.

A pleasant birth 'mid firmly established notes,
A sudden cascade into breathless—
But back! Too daring! Follow on a little.
Work your ends a slow and measured way.

Keep harmony—be patient for the while . . .
We try to live again our childhood years
But find them strangely altered—strangely sad;
A variation mayhap in our minds
That makes us thrash about in wild regret.
So strong and ending always firm and quiet.

The theme comes yet again,
The notes speak scorn
Of the staid chords which move slowly at their side;
Striving still to 'scape and every moment wildly darting
Off to higher reaches—tumbling madly back
In ecstasy of fear
To join the reassuring hands of their old companions
Moving in stately harmony in the bass.
Thus life moves on throughout its prime, wild flights
Of foolish fancy and the staid retreat.
Convention holds
A sure and steady hand mid present doubt.
Always the appeal to abide by laws and die of monotony
And always the vigorous flight and panicky retreat
To smiles—and bows—and masks.
To
Hate the morning. Dream the day.
Curse the night.
Until with beating hearts we gird ourselves
And say: "Now!
Now to break away
To taste, O at last at last to taste
An ungratified passion!
To leave behind all madd'ning worldly bonds!
To taste the harsher joy of ecstasy
And with the music float above the clouds!"
Just like the lone—unaccompanied
Notes of the cadence, high on the piano . . . Stop!
Stop it all! The cadence—
I can't breathe
For all motion—all life is suspended;
And here for thirteen bars a lifetime of suffering
Merging into a final acceptance of destiny.
Four fingers spurning keys, or a violin's Estranging,
All roads lead to the same God—

Ski Meet On Sunday

Women Ski Team Also Competing

Taking advantage of the few remaining days of good skiing the last of the two intercompany ski meets will be run off at St. Sauveur this coming Sunday. Apparently wet snow will be in demand, for spring skiing has come to stay; which means sugar snow and plenty of it. The first event will be the downhill at 10.30 a.m. on the downhill run. The second event will be the slalom at 2.30 in the afternoon on Hill 71. These will be the only two events as there will be no cross country race on the program.

LISTS POSTED

Lists have been posted in all the buildings for those wishing to take part in the competition. So far, the race has been pretty much one sided with F. Coy. having taken the lead in the previous meet and keeping a comfortable nine point margin between themselves and second place G. Coy. In the last meet, Fleming and Fitzpatrick led the pack in both the slalom and downhill events and were the major contributors to the 28 points amassed by F. Coy. The other teams taking part include the C.O.T.C. and the M.A.F. who are next in line with nine and seven points respectively. The other teams are pretty much out of the running unless the leaders lose some of their star performers, or unless they have been holding something in reserve.

This meet will be novel due to the fact that the leader of the women's ski team has asked to enter a team in the same meet. They will run in conjunction with the intercompany meet and will be subject to the same rules governing the course, time and locale. The points they might get in the meet will count for the various sections competing in their schedule. Entries for the meet will be accepted till Friday at four o'clock, and those received after this time will be considered as post entries and will run at the end of the list.

The humble Chinese, blood-soaked and praying to his God.
The proud Cossack, the defiant Australian,
They mumble or shout, cringe or tower; it is all one
And all here
As the tiny notes send their message and gently descend,
A thirst quenched . . . A lust satiated . . .
A few moments of reminiscence amid tears of happiness.
A quiet old age amid quiescent tonic harmony.
A life lived not in vain.

Intercoy. Swim Meet Takes Place March 19

With the Inter-Company sport schedule rapidly coming to a close the final swimming meet of the year will take place on Thursday, March 19 at the Knight's of Columbus on Mountain Street. The following events are to be contested: firstly the 50 yards free style will be run off, following this the 75 yard breast stroke and 100 yards free style will take place. The other races will be the 75 yard back stroke and the inter-company relay.

One of the main attractions will be the diving contest which will feature well known dives such as the swan, jack-knife, etc. The inter-company relay should also prove to be a colorful exhibition of aquatic skill. If the form shown in previous meets is repeated on March 19, there is no doubt as to the success of this last and final meet. Points acquired from this meet will of course count towards the inter-company league standing. This should prove to be an added incentive towards a keen competitive spirit as in all previous contests competition has been tight. The winners of the various events will be further rewarded for they will be entitled to qualify for various swimming awards. This in itself should induce the participants to strive still further in carrying off as many points as possible from the several races.

Aggies Win Net Fixture In Playoffs

E. Coy. Plays Inds. in Semi-finals

In the intercompany basketball playoffs, A Company was eliminated by a strong Aggie aggregate on Monday last by the score of 32-20. This places MacDonald in a position to play off with the winners of the forthcoming match between E Company and Ind. The winner of this contest will hold the basketball crown for the season.

In Monday's game the Aggies proved to be the only team which had so far been able to stop Noseworthy of A Company. Chapman led the scoring for the victors, breaking through his opponents' guards time and time again to garner valuable points. The A Company attack was slowed considerably due to the fact that Schachter was used sparingly because of an injury.

FIRST PERIOD

In the first half MacDonald took the initiative, keeping the play down in A coy's sector most of the time. Chapman pressed the attack, and the half ended with the Aggies leading by a score of 16-8. The second half saw the Redmen badly winded, and the MacDonald team again took the initiative to score another 16 points, bringing their total up to 32 at the end of the game. In this period A coy. got 12 points. The game ended 32-20 for the Aggies.

The lineup was as follows:
A coy: Trigg, Womfor, Cohen, Schachter, Darragh, Noseworthy.
Mac: Chapman, Cordukes, Rockwell, Anderson, LaLecheur, Jenkins, Kachonoff.

Mistress: "Now for goodness' sake, don't spill anything during the meal tonight."
Maid: "O.K., ma'am. I'll keep quiet."

Union sustained a loss of over $3,000.00. Of this amount $800.00 was lost on Cafeteria account. In 1941 the amount of loss in the Union was over $3,500.00 of which $1,000.00 was due to loss on the cafeteria.

It would seem as if this whole situation would bear investigation with a view to more efficient management of student fees.

War Effort and Reconstruction.

As students we must press for an all out war effort in every sphere of activity; this means skillfully trained technicians, medical men, financiers as well as trained officers and men for the various services.

There is also the question of post war reconstruction.

An effort must be made to keep these problems before the student body. Democratic principles must triumph over the Autarchic; Freedom over slavery, Civilization over Barbarism. This is our challenge and as students we accept it. With undaunted zeal we shall strive to hasten the day:

"When the war drums throb no longer and the battle flags were furled in the parliament of Man, the Federation of the world."

way detracting from our studies.

Campus Activities

The various clubs and societies which are active on the campus contribute in no small measure to the education of a college student. These activities should not be curtailed except where absolutely necessary. I think the student body is anxious for a return of the Red and White Revue, and it seems to me that a show of that type might well be used to raise war funds, while at the same time it would enable those students interested to continue this type of work. Such activities at the "Mile of Pennies," the Blood Bank, and the Guinea Pig Club have already been heartily endorsed by the students, and even more functions would be welcome. Any social events designed to contribute financially to the government's wartime programme should be encouraged.

Athletics

The opinion of the McGill student body with reference to Intercollegiate sport has already been expressed in the poll conducted during this past winter. In view of the feelings of the vast majority of the students on this subject, McGill's student representative to the C.I.A.U. meeting this coming June, should do everything possible to see that a modified form of Inter-Collegiate sport, compatible with a maximum war effort, be adopted. The opinions of the governments of the U.S.A. and Great Britain with regard to sport should not be overlooked by that body.

Those in charge of our Intramural programme are doing a wonderful job in providing all students an opportunity to participate in such Athletics as they choose and thus build up their physical as well as mental fitness. They should receive the whole hearted co-operation of the students.

Scholarship

Particularly in these times, when the government realizes the value of trained men to the country, it should be possible to obtain increasing aid for students who require financial assistance. The president of the Students' Society must do all in his power to see that such aid is forthcoming.

There are probably some matters which warrant a more detailed discussion but in a platform of this type it is obviously impossible to discuss these things fully. Moreover, I do not feel that a candidate for this office is in a position to make any election promises other than the promise to interpret the feelings of the student body to the best of his ability, and to give to the office all the energy and enthusiasm at his disposal.

War Advisory Board

Realizing that we are not in a position to decide where our talents would be of most use a War Advisory Board should be set up as soon as possible. I shall take every opportunity of offering the co-operation of the student body to the authorities. The aim of the War Advisory Board will be to guide students into spheres of action where their abilities can be used to the maximum. This Committee would be able to state the number and abilities of students attending the University as well as their availability for part time work. If this information were made available to the Government it would facilitate the introduction of selective service. To help in publicizing the opportunities open to students the Daily could run a special column giving information on enlistment possibilities, positions in war industry and volunteer work.

The Speeding Up of Courses

In order that Canada may get on with the job we must produce as many trained men as possible as quickly as possible. To do this it seems advisable that the University curriculum be speeded up. Also, in order that our studies will be profitable, the courses offered at present should be reviewed and non-essential courses eliminated while at the same time, courses of a military nature should be added.

The University authorities should be offered the co-operation of the student body so that they could help. A student-faculty committee for each faculty would be useful in solving the special problems which will arise concerning each branch of study. In order that no student will be handicapped by any arrangements that will be made the problem of financial assistance, scholarships must be considered.

Co-Eds in Selective Service

The women at the University should be included in all that is done regarding selective service. We should recommend that a training centre similar to the C.O.T.C. be established to train officers for the Canadian Women's Army Corps and other services. A large women's army is contemplated and a great number of officers will be needed.

Although at present men only are being considered for summer employment, this should be extended to the women of the University. There are many jobs at which women are as deft as men. Men must be released for important work in the armed forces.

Post War Rehabilitation of Students

The Government has already made a statement concerning this but nothing definite has been established. This is a matter with which students alone are concerned, and we are responsible for obtaining a more definite statement. We owe this to the men and women who have left us to go on active service and to enter war industry, as well as to those who will leave us in the future.

Responsible Government and Student Activities

The primary duty of every student, while he is at College, is to finish his courses. Due to the war our studies have added importance and responsibilities. If our spare time is efficiently organized, we can make a definite contribution. Every student should make it his or her responsibility to sacrifice a small amount of time.

The War Council

We know that the establishment of the War Council was a timely and positive move in the organization of a total war effort on the campus. A great deal has been done this year and with this beginning, we can do even more next year.

In order to involve as many as possible, the students should have greater representation on the main body of the War Council. Each representative should also be the executive of the group he represents. If these groups are small enough, frequent discussions could be had and therefore representative suggestions and criticisms would reach the War Council. On the other hand when there is a job to be done each group will be allotted a task and the representative will be responsible for seeing that the task is efficiently carried out. With this financing out of responsibility and by personal contact there will be more incentive for students to take part.

The activities of the War Council should be continuous. If a certain job is worth doing one evening in the year it is probably worth doing every day and evening in the year. In this way it would not be necessary to go to the trouble of persuading great numbers to turn out at any one time. If tasks were allotted to groups by the week or month, it would be possible to take advantage of much spare time which under the present system we must necessarily do without. Two of the outstanding examples on the Campus are the Blood Bank scheme and the Guinea Pig Club, which show how work can be done without fuss or breaking into studies.

Exchange of Ideas with other Universities

In order that we may progress as rapidly as possible, arrangements should be made for the active co-operation between the student governments of the Universities of Canada. At regular intervals or as required, ideas and data on activities should be exchanged, including those of French-Canadian students.

Social Activities and Sports

I suggest that affairs such as dances should be run with a view to collecting money for war services. At the same time we should be more thoughtful of the Air Force men on the campus. They have been entertained on several occasions but this is another matter which should receive more continuous and methodical attention. Various groups on the campus could take the responsibility for this in rotation and in this way make the work more effective.

In order to obtain as clear and exact a picture as possible of current events and a reasonable interpretation of their significance I think that we should take every opportunity of inviting men of national importance to address us.

Every student will be encouraged to take an active interest in sports so that we shall be physically able to do our best work at all times. If at any time it seems possible to extend the sphere of sports beyond the limits of the University, I should be most happy to do so.

Freshman Guidance at Registration

It is felt that in the past too little assistance has been given freshmen in adjusting themselves to the University courses and that the activities of the Freshmen Reception Committee should be enlarged in scope to include intelligent discussion on courses.

Before I close I wish to tell you that Charles Harris has played an important part in the drawing up of this platform. We have discussed these matters several times and find that we have many ideas in common. The most important fact that we are agreed upon is that things on the campus must get rolling at top speed. The co-operation of the students is necessary. It is with a promise for action towards this co-operation on the campus that we offer ourselves as candidates to the students of this University.

and activity to the benefit of Canada's war effort.

c) Third, every opportunity to maintain whatever extra-curricular activity they may wish, insofar as possible.

If national selective service is established or not, it would be my policy, consistent with the time not required for studies, to provide a greater stimulus to an enlarged and more constructive war effort on the part of all students, taking into account the fact that in some courses more study is required than in others. Such an effort, done through the War Council, should be so directed as to be in accordance with the national war needs. If the country needs rubber, aluminium etc., then McGill students should organize a campaign in response to such needs.

The War Council, of which the President of the Student's Society is automatically President, should provide a means whereby students who wish to make a maximum contribution to the war effort in hours not required by their studies, may be furnished the means to do so. However, all work under its auspices should always be voluntary and at no time should it tend to dictate to the students.

The choice of the war charity to which proceeds raised in any of the campaigns should be by vote of those participating in the campaign.

In addition the Council should foster discussion wherein post-war problems could be discussed and also sponsor well-known speakers on such problems at open meetings.

B) Student Self-government

We have at McGill a form of government which can be made to work in fairness to the majority. To have it carried out correctly requires the efforts of people who are interested in student government, and whose curriculum leaves them sufficient time to handle the multitude of jobs to be done.

In the past I have always stood for student self-government; I still do and always will, and will protect such rights to the very best of my ability.

There are countless occasions where the President must choose people to perform various jobs connected with student activity and many decisions have to be made which allow room for prejudice and favour. If elected, I promise to appoint such students and make such decisions on the sole basis of merit and fairness, regardless of any club or society affiliations a student may have, the same basis upon which I should like to be considered as a candidate for election.

The principle of fairness is an anchor of good government and I shall do my best, if elected or not, to maintain that principle throughout the entire administration of student affairs.

Students' Executive Council

This year's experience as a member of the Executive Council has taught me many things.

Constitutionally the Executive Council exists to carry out the policy of the Student's Society. In the past, communication of opinions from students to the council have been all too few. If the Council is to carry out its functions accurately, students should be encouraged and stimulated to make their opinions known to the Council.

C) McGill Men Overseas

There are many McGill men serving Canada overseas. Many of the students at McGill would be interested in knowing about where they are, what they are doing, whether there are any little services that may be done for them. I propose to have a depot established on the campus which would co-operate with the Graduates Society, with the military authorities, with the press and with people receiving mail from overseas, in an effort to prepare as much information as possible about McGill men overseas and have it available to the Daily for publication.

It would be the duty of this depot, too, to encourage McGill men overseas to write to it in order to further its efforts.

D) Military Training

If military training next year is of a similar nature to that carried out during the past two years, there are a few things which students would like altered. The President of the Student's Society has no power in this connection. All the training is carried on under the supervision of the Ministry of National Defence. However the President of the Student's Society can make recommendations. If elected to the Presidency I shall co-operate with the local military authorities, bringing to their attention at all times the wishes of the student body.

E) Athletics

Students should devote enough time to athletics to keep fit and maintain morale. I am heartily in favour of the return of intercollegiate competition as soon, and upon as large a scale, as is feasible. No candidate can promise to effect such a return, but should the occasion arise where it is a possibility, and where it would not conflict with studies and military training, I shall bend every effort towards its reinstatement.

For those who through lack of time or ability, cannot play on a representative university team, I am in favour of a large intra-mural program, and believe that such activity should receive a whole-hearted support from the student body.

Having spent three years in managerial positions of football teams in the days of intercollegiate sport, and another year as senior football manager and having been on the Student's Athletic Council, I propose to utilize this experience to the best advantage of student athletic activity of the University.

F) College Summer Session

If the College, or only part, is open this summer, as in the case of many American Universities, student activity should be carried out in proportion to the number of students attending. This would involve a deviation from the normal routine activities of the President and a sound grounding in student government would be advantageous, or even necessary, to cope with new problems as would undoubtedly arise and to afford co-ordination of activities.

G) Freshman Reception

There should be a Freshmen reception programme which would be even more successful than last year's. Green bow ties, as before, a better vigilante committee to keep the frosh interested, and above all, an attempt to instill into them a ready McGill spirit and build a unity in the class that will carry them through the years.

This kind of programme is very important because it is in the first year of college that students develop a rather permanent attitude towards college and we should make every effort to steer these attitudes in the right direction.

suits are needed before next Tuesday. The red and white team defeated the team from Stanstead last week, and proved that they can really play when they want to.

The fencing club has a new manager, but before she takes over, the club will be taking part in a few more competitions under the former manager. The young Robin Hoods will get a chance to show off their skill when they take part in Novice Provincial Meet on March 23, and as we shall not have another chance to wish them luck, we'll take this opportunity, and hope they do as well as they have done so far.

The second class for the Camp Counselors will be held this afternoon in the M.H.S. at 4.15 p.m. Mr. Hay Finlay delivering the lecture. At 4.50 the Phys Eds will give a demonstration of Water Safety with a Canoe. Everyone is invited and an interesting hour is promised.

Everybody hates to say good-bye, and we're no exception. It has been grand and loads of fun writing this column, but we're afraid that this is the last one for the year, as this is the last week that the Daily will come out. We want to thank all those people who waded through this column every week—especially the printer—and wish you all the best of luck in your exams. So long for now.

on trumpet have highlighted the band's efforts for the past few months. Bobbie is teamed with Frank Barnard, lead trumpet, in the Kenney brass section. The brasses also boast Ted Elstrom, first trombone, and Jack Fowler, who leaves the piano long enough to add his slip-horn to a fanfare or a sock chorus.

The Kenney reeds are paced by tenor saxist Arnie Moller, who plays plenty of sweet, and Mark Mortimer on clarinet. The maestro also lends a hand in this respect, filling out the third alto, chair. Art Hallman, of vocal fame, is also a permanent member of the sax group, and doubles on bass clarinet.

To handle the rhythm, the band boasts of Bill Claydon, who plays drums when he's not reinforcing the trumpets, and Jack Fowler, trombonist-pianist. Hec McCallum handles the string bass.

Vocal duties naturally fall to lovely Judy Richards, Art Hallman and the Quartet. Their rendition of all the current favorites are familiar to Sweet and Low listeners—they can do justice to the current commercial ballad and the old evergreen with equal ease.

and consequently the dance represents the individual work of the students. In general, the Modern Dance differs from Ballet in that it depicts contemporary themes.

Debating Union Meets Tomorrow

Students is scheduled for Friday in the R.V.C. Common Room at 5.15 p.m. The topic is: "Resolved that the government should own and control all essential war industries for the duration of the war." Reginald Keylor and S. Mitchell Dent will represent Toronto, while the debaters for McGill have not yet been announced.
